'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Another book that most of you will enjoy is "Patrol" which is written by Jack MacDonald.

* * * *

Perhaps many of you saw "Journey's End," when it played Oakland or San Francisco.

* * * *

"Patrol" is written along the same theme, only much more interesting.

* * * *

The story tells of a patrol of British troopers lost in the Arabian desert, their horses stolen by hostile tribes and no relief in sight. They are marooned on an oasis.

* * * *

The author has shown a remarkable understanding of human nature in his character studies—a fact that makes the book readable.

* * * *

If one wants to read the book to become shocked—one may.

Which all brings to our mind that there are three classes of readers in the general public.

* * * *

First there is the class that reads books to enjoy them for their style, plot treatment or what have you.

* * * *

The second is a class that will read a book to be shocked by it and to wonder, "why is this allowed? There should be a law."

* * * *

And then there is a third class that reads books because it is the thing to do.

* * * *

Several short years ago it was the thing to do to read Mencken. How many read him now?

Head Of Failed Bond House Will Lose Citizenship

PORTLAND, Ore., May 5.—(UP)—John L. Etheridge, manager of Morris Brothers' bond house at the time of its failure and loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars to its creditors, today was deprived of his citizenship papers in a decision handed down in federal court by Judge Robert S. Bean.

He also served two terms for forgery in an eastern prison before coming to Portland.

In making the ruling, Judge Bean said:

"In my opinion the certificate of citizenship of John L. Etheridge should be set aside."

The channel in front of the Proctor and Gamble site will be only 200 feet wide as the company failed to enter the agreement with the other property owners.

SALE OF RUM EQUIPMENT OUTLAWED BY HIGH COURT

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(UP)—The 89-year old Justice Holmes today announced a unanimous supreme court decision outlawing the sale of barrels, bottles and other bootlegging equipment when offered for sale in a mode to indicate it is destined for illicit manufacture of liquor.

It was probably the bone-dryest of the court's bone-dry decisions In his opinion, Holmes said, previous decisions upholding such sales could not stand against the "afflatus" of dry legislation.

"Aflatus" means "divine impartation of knowledge," according to the dictionary, but there was no indication as to whether the justice meant just this, or its other definitions—"inspiration," "breath of wind," or "overmastering or supernatural impulse."

To Suppress Traffic

The decision re-stated the court intention to interpret the Volstead Act in the light that congress thereby intends to suppress the entire traffic in liquor.

The case, appealed by Ike Danoviez, Pittsburgh, surviving partner of the Feitler Bottle company, involved liquor containers, barrels, corks, labels, siphons, bottle-caps, and a host of similar materials—all of which are offered daily for sale in thousands of stores thruout the country.

Richmond's twilight baseball season was sent off to a fine start by last nights' fiercely fought contest. If competition between the other league squads is as close as last night's rivalry between the Lodgemen and refinery athletes, a strenuous season should be in store for the league players.

The Odd Fellows started the scoring in the first inning when Charley Matteri crossed home plate. No more scoring was done until the fourth, when both Wicherson and Smith of the Standard Oil team sailed home. The Lodgemen retaliated in the fifth with two more runs by Moitoza and Gualdoni. In spite of frantic efforts in the last two cantos, the score remained 3 to 2 for the rest of the game.

Orr twirled for the victorious Odd Fellows, allowing but five hits. Peacock, pitching for the Standard Oil nine, was nicked for 11 hits.

"Gallant Fox" Favorite At Kentucky Derby

NEW YORK, May 5.—(UP) — Prospects for the Kentucky Derby have shifted from the expected "most open derby of recent years" to a one-horse race. As the important fortnight of the eastern racing season opened tonight, the Belair stud, "Gallant Fox," was an overwhelming favorite to take both the $60,000 Preakness at Pimlico this Friday, and the highly prized derby at Churchill Downs on Saturday, May 17.

Gallant Fox was given little consideration at the time Harry Payne Whitney's Winter Book favorites, —Whichone and Boe-Jum— were withdrawn from the derby. Since that time he has shown impressively and has become the horse the balance of the field must defeat.

With Earl Sande up, Gallant Fox scored an easy victory in the $10,000 Wood Memorial handicap at Jamaica, and even the trainers of other derby entrants now believe that he will carry Sande to his third derby triumph.

The Preakness is the final test for derby candidates, and if Gallant Fox wins this race, he will undoubtedly enter the derby as one of the shortest price favorites in years.

A new candidate for derby honors wos uncovered today when Audley Farm's previously unher-

ATHLETICS IN FIRST PLACE BY WIN

American League:

The Philadelphia Athletics went into a tie with the Cleveland Indians Monday for the American league lead, by winning from the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 3 in 12 innings, while the Indians lost to the Boston Red Sox, 18 to 3.

Washington missed an opportunity to gain the lead by losing to the Detroit Tigers, 3 to 1. It was the Senators' third straight defeat.

Four home runs—Two by Foley, and one each by Haas and Simmons enabled the Athletics to beat Alvin Crowder. Simmons' homer in the twelfth won the game. Lefty Grove won his third game of the season.

After winning six straight, Cleveland collapsed in the final game against the Red Sox and four Indians pitchers were pounded for 23 hits.

The New York Yankees won their third straight from the Chicago White Sox, 4 to 1, Vernon Gomez, rookie southpaw, pitching a 5-hit game.

National League:

Bill Walker's pitching and batting featured the New York Giants' 9 to 1 victory over Pittsburgh, and the Giants replaced the Pirates at the top of the National league. Walker held the Pirates to 6 hits and blanked them until the ninth. He hit a homer with the bases filled in the fourth. Grantham's homer was the only run made off Walker.

Cincinnati beat the Boston Braves 10 to 6, in the only other National league game. Two errors by Freddy Maguire paved the way for six unearned runs off Burleigh Grimes, giving the Reds a six run lead. Wally Berger, Braves' rookie outfielder, hit a home run with two men on. Horace Ford, Reds' shortstop, made three doubles and a triple in five times at bat.

Rain halted the Phillies-Cubs game, at the end of the first inning, with the Cubs leading 1 to 0.

Philadelphia Athletics defeated the more highly regarded Crack Brigade, Michigan Boy and Desert Light in the Worthington purse at Pimlico, —a mile and 70 yard test for the Preakness eligibles.

Woodcraft was rated along in close pursuit of the leaders, then swung to the outside when making his rush, and came home under a stiff drive to beat Crack Brigade by a nose in 1:44. Crack Brigade, carrying 123 pounds against 108 for the winner, led from the start, but lacked the reserve strength to win. Michigan Boy tried gamely, but was not good enough to win and like Desert Light, which appeared sore, would not extend himself, may be withdrawn from the two big stakes.

The four teams entered in this year's league contain some of the best baseball talent ever to grace a local diamond. The squad lineups have been weeded out in order to give the league fans a chance to see the very best that the Standard Oil company has to offer in baseball material.

The A. C. A. L. diamond season ended last Tuesday with Richmond tied for third place with Berkeley high school. The local players feel confident that they can handle the Cadets tomorrow, for the Richmond boys have gained great experience during their first season in the Alameda County Athletic league. After trouncing the league-winning Alamedans twice, the Richmond Union high school varsity squad should be able to take the San Rafaelites into camp tomorrow afternoon at San Rafael.

Tomorrows game will be the last of the season for the Richmond aggregation.

Corey Garage Nine Defeats Native Sons

Using four pitchers in a vain attempt to stem the hitting attack of their opponents, the Native Sons went down to a 14 to 2 defeat before the Corey Garage nine Sunday at El Cerrito.

The garagemen probably played the best ball of their career last week-end. Their fielding was as near perfect as has been seen on a local diamond this sason, and their batting completely bewildered the untortunate Native Sons.

"Letty" Brendel pitched a clever game for the Coreys, allowing but seven hits. Four Native Sons alternated in the box, allowing a total of 16 hits. The Native Sons who pitched Sunday were Viano, DeBaere, Cabral and Carlson.

Klatt did the strong swatting for the winners. He made good four out of five chances at bat.

The Corey's are scheduled to clash with the Kelly All-Stars next Sunday at 2 o'clock at El Cerrito. The Kelly athletes were formerly known as the El Cerrito Merchants.

Murder Hint In Death Of Stock Rancher

BURNS, Ore., May 5.—UP—His head crushed by blows from a heavy instrument, the body of Ira Bradley, 65, stock rancher of the Wagontire district, was brought here today.

Bradley apparently was struck down as he was building a fire. His body was found Saturday by S. Bradley, a son, and Jesse Pennington, farmer. Authorities believe he was slain sometime Wednesday.

Apparently Bradley was struck down without warning as the little cabin he occupied showed no signs of a struggle.

Authorities knew of no motive for the crime. Bradley was not wealthy nor did he have any known enemies. In his pockets were found a watch, $2.50 in cash and a knife.

Indications were that a visitor had been at the cabin recently. The two beds in the cabin had been occupied.

Harold Bradley, son of the aged man, was shot to death five years ago by R. L. Hutton, prominent stock rancher of the Wagontire district, which is located about 75 miles southeast of here. Hutton pleaded self-defense and was acquitted.

Vote Exchange Charged In Parker Row

WASHINGTON, May 5.—UP—A charge that the administration has offered federal judgships to Senators for votes for John J. Parkers' confirmation as Supreme Court justice was made today by Senator Ashurst, Dem., Ariz., on the eve of the Senate vote.

Then Senator McKellar, Dem., Tenn., who made public last week the Dixon letter urging Parker's appointment as a "master political stroke," interrupted the debate to charge without mentioning the Parker appointment, that his office was rifled during the week-end probably by "some secret service agent."

McKellar said his office was left in disorder but as far as he could find nothing was missing from his files.

Ashurst's charge was accompanied by a demand that the Senate lobby committee investigate "new and additional evidence that this nomination is tainted with rank injustice to the American people."

"Call the lobby committee and find out who was offered a federal judgeship and other appointments to vote for this nominee," he shouted.

Chairman Caraway of the lobby committee indicated he did not think any such investigation would be made, but he would not state his position definitely.

Senator Fess, Repn., O. demanded an explanation from Ashurst, declaring if he meant President Hoover was offering judgeships in return for votes for Parker he wanted to contest the statement and have an investigation. Ashurst replied he had not said the president was making the offers, but that the offers were being made by those seeking Parker's confirmation.

After Fess told Ashurst his charge was "very serious," the Arizona man replied: "Yes, it's probably the most serious I ever made in the Senate."

Ashurst said a Senator had told him of being offered a federal judgeship. Ashurst learned of this Friday, he said, and since then has been reflecting on the seriousness of the charge, and discussing it with other Senators.

BILL HAINES AT BEST IN NEW TALKIE

Love and laughs, romance and high finance, mingle in a rapid-fire blend of hilarity and heart throbs in William Haines' latest and one of his most ambitious pictures, "The Girl Said No," his all talking Metro Goldwyn Mayer vehicle which opens today at the Fox-California theater.

The picture has Haines as a chap fresh from college, with a diploma, a swelled head and a bagful of "wise-cracks." The plot depicts his adventures trying to get his first job and his early struggles with the world of business and competition.

It's a cross section of the college graduates of the country. He starts fresh, to be tamed by responsibility and hard work. Poignant drama, heart throbs and a charming romance mingle with thrills and laughs. It's one of the closest things to real life the screen has given the theater and it's great entertainment.

Haines starts with pranks and comedy; he meets a girl in an office and falls in love with her; gets his first job, is fired; his father dies and he shoulders the responsibility for the family—and a whirlwind finish sees him 'come through." The hilarious incidents include a breakneck automobile elopement and details of an actual Wall Street brokerage house in full operation in the heat of trading. The human interest lies in the intimate touches of family life. Comedy at a college party, a night club and the breaking up of a wedding add the typical Haines whimsicalities.

Also on the program is a talking comedy entitled, "Black Narcissus."

DRIVERS MUST OBSERVE STOP SIGNALS

Boulevard stops, so essential to the safety of traffic on arterial as well as intersecting streets, will be the subject of the state-wide traffic safety educational campaign conducted during May by the California committee on public safety in cooperation with state and local traffic law enforcement officials.

As part of its all-year educational and enforcement program for the reduction of the traffic accident toll, the committee will stress during May the law on boulevard stops

For the first ten days of the month ,motorists throughout the state will be educated, through the press, radio stations ,service clubs and theaters, to the necessity of observing boulevard stops.

The California highway patrol and police department of major cities, who are cooperating in the safety campaign, will enforce strictly the state law governing this type of violation beginning the tenth of the month.

"Stopping at Boulevard Stops Averts Crashes," is the slogan for the month which will be stressed by the committee in car cards and through other educational means. Cooperating with the committee, the legal department of the California State Automobile association, points out that the state law requires motorists to bring their vehicles to a complete stop upon approaching any arterial or thru street designated by signs. The law on the right-of-way at boulevard stops reads:

"The driver of any vehicle who has come to a stop as required by law at the entrance to a through highway shall yield to other vehicles within the intersection or approaching so closely from the left as to constitute an immediate hazard; but said driver having so yielded may proceed any other vehicles approaching the intersection from the left or right shall yield to the vehicle so proceeding into or across the through highway."

RIO RITA AT RICHMOND TODAY

The first great dramatic spectacle of the talking screen—Radio Pictures' Ziegfeld's fabulous operetta, 'Rio Rita'— comes to the Richmond theater today.

With John Boles and Bebe Daniels heading a gigantic cast of players, singers, dancers, beauties Rita' takes its place among the great screen plays of all time. In its wealth of diversified entertainment it has doubtless never been equalled.

Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey play the comedy roles they created for Ziegfeld; Dorothy Lee, the baby-talk girl of "Syncopation" Helen Kaiser, one of Ziegfeld's "glorified" girls; Georges Renavant, French stage star, and Don Alvarado are others of the featured cast.

Much of the film was photographed in technicolor and the sets and costumes are said to have outdone anything seen on the talking screen

Harry Tierney, composer of the original tuneful score of "Rio Rita" added two new song hits to the picture. Cimini's grand opera chorus of 80 voices; the Pearl Eaton chorus of 100 Hollywood beauties, the first stock chorus in motion pictures, and a symphonic orchestra directed by Victor Baravelle are other features of the film, which was directed by Luther Reed.

SCHOOL PUPILS WARNED OF TRAFFIC

The oft-repeated warning to children "look both ways before crossing the street" is the theme of the current traffic safety lesson being taught school pupils this month through the medium of the poster series issued by the public safety department of the California State Automobil eassociation. The motorists organization prepares and distributes a monthly poster lesson to 12,500 classrooms throughout northern and central California to be displ'ayed prominently throughout the month. The theme of the poster is made the subject of lessons, compositions by children and talks by teachers on traffic safety.

"Watch Traffic Both Ways" is the terse slogan on the curren poster, No. 25 in the association series. A short lesson accompaning the poster reads as follows:

"Seventy-five per cent of traffic accidents take place at intersections of streets or highways where pedestrian and vehicular traffic must inevitably meet. Increased care on the part of both the motorist and the pedestrian will mean a certain reduction of deaths and injuries due to such accidents.

"Pedestrians, according to figures which cannot be disputed, are responsible for approximately fifty percent of the accidents occurring at intersections. When motor vehicles and pedestrian conflict the latter suffers, the motorist being protected by his machine. The pedestrian, therefore, should exercise great care, for his self-preservation if nothing else.

"If the children of today can be taught to "Watch Traffic Both Ways" when crossing the street, California's 1930 traffic toll will be materially reduced."

Tariff Bill Will Be Passed

WASHINGTON, May 5.—UP—Passage of the tariff bill despite bitter opposition from many quarters seemed certain today to be cold question of votes.

Senate and White House circles seemed certain that the protest of 1028 University Economists against the passage of the bill would not be effective.

Many Guests At 'Country Club'

OLYMPIA, Wash., May 5.—UP—"There ain't no news except that we have here a week-end list of 45 guests at Walla Walla country club, otherwise known as the Washington State penitentiary," Governor Hartley told newspapermen today. He added that 23 of them were "worthless check artists and liquor merchants—the two professions that seem to go together."

STATE GAS USE DOUBLES IN SIX YEARS

SACRAMENTO, May 5.—Gasoline taxes for expenditure on California highways amounted to $8,775,199.42 during the first three months of 1930. This was revealed here today by Fred E. Stewart of Oakland, member of the State Board of Equalization, who administers the law imposing a three cent tax on each gallon of motor vehicle fuel sold.

California motorists have almost doubled their use of gasoline since 1924, which was the first complete year of the tax. Comparisons made by Stewart, who was elected to the Equalization Board in 1926, show that assessments for the first quarter have increased from 157,128,556.5 gallons six years ago to 295,461,257.1 gallons this year.

In addition to administration of the gasoline tax, the State Board of Equalization directs the major part of the balance of Californias' revenue system, including taxes on railroads, power companies, telephone companies, highway transportation companies and other public utilities, as well as insurance companies. These taxes now aggregate more than $40,000,00 annually, having increased from $7,200,000 in 1911, when the Equalization Board was first placed in charge of them.

Commenting upon the substantial part which the gasoline tax plays in the state's revenues, Stewart said:

Half of Sum

"The remarkable productivity of this tax is forcefully demonstrated from the fact that it represents practically half of the $80,000,000 in taxes raised by our board each year.

"During my four years of experience in revenue administration I have become convinced that a simple tax of this character, used reasonably, is much to be preferred to over-elaborate methods of defraying public expenses sometimes urged upon us by economic theorists unfamiliar with actual conditions.

"For the sake of our citizenry I hope that the gasoline tax, and others like it, will constitute permanent parts of our tax system, and that intricate schemes for raising public funds will be discarded and avoided.

"Experience has proved that these schemes are frequently inequitable and cost more to administer than their yield justifies."

Represents District

Stewart, who has lived in Oakland for 25 years, represents the second equalization district, comprising Alameda, Contra Costa, San Joaquin, Sacramento, Stanislaus, Merced, Madera, Fresno, Kings, Tulare Kern, Inyo, Mono, Mariposa, Tuolumne, Calaveras, Amador and Alpine coutnies.

Before his election to the Equalization Board, Stewart was superintendent of the State Belt Line Railroad in San Francisco for seven years. During the past 15 years he has been a member of the Republican State Central committee.

Police Punish Prowler Suspect

In addition to spending Sunday in the El Cerrito jail and paying a fine of $5, M. J. Hansen, 48, of Modoc street, Richmond Annex, was forced to wash the police car yesterday, because of his alleged prowling early Sunday morning.

Hansen was arrested on complaint of Mrs. R. J. Craig, Pomona and Hotchkiss streets. Police declare Hansen had been drinking and was apparently unable to find his way home.

Examinations Of School Pupils Told

Examinations of Richmond children who will enter school this fall for the first time, will be conducted this month under the supervision of the P. T. A. Plans for the examinations were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the local council.

The work will be conducted at the Lincoln school every morning between 9 o'lock and noon, between the dates of May 19 and May 26. On May 27-28 the examination will be held at Fairmont school in El Cerrito for the children of that district.

The committee appointed or the movement here are Mrs. G. Finn, of the Giant association; Mrs. C. C. Robin of the Washington association; Mrs. R. Carlyle of Grant association; Mrs. K. T. Nee of Grant association, and Mrs. E. Cassleman, of Peres association.

Mrs. Nora Ashfield, assistant city superintendent of schools, who is working in conjunction with the P. T. A., issued the following statement:

"After many years of careful observation it has been determined definitely that children who enter school for the first time make better progress in their school work if they are physically fit for the first grade at the time they enter school. This means that a child must have normal vision, normal hearing, clean teeth, with no unfilled cavities, and normal nose and throat, without adenoids and without diseased or enlarge tonsils, normal weight and normal posture. These factors represent the minimum health requirements for the child who enters school.

"A careful medical examiner might find other defects which are not listed under these minimum standards, but it is certain that a child cannot accomplish satisfactory work in the public sshools unless he can see well, near well, breathe well, and properly masticate the food that he eats. He must also have the proper kinds of food to eat and his health habits must be such that he will have no tendency to be underweight or overweight. He must also be able to stand erect and must not tire too easily.

"The California Congress of Parents and Teachers, together with the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Public Health, are conducting a round-up of children who are to enter school next fall, providing them with physical examinations at no cast, in order to determine exactly what their physical conditions may be and to make them physically fit for the first grade."

HUGE STRIKE THREATENS INDIA

BOMBAY, May 5. —(UP)—New strikes and passionate demonstrations broke out in quick succession today in many places thruout India as word of the arrest of the Mahatma Ghandi in the dark hours of the morning spread to the corners of the nation.

British rule laid down with a firm hand, held rebellious followers of the elderly campaigner for India's freedom in check, but permitted parades and could not prevent observance of Hartals—those specially called observances of a certain religious code which obviates work for a day, two days, or the length of the hartal. In effect, it is a strike paralyzing business.

In Surat, a two-day hartal was called this morning, when it was found that the police had come at last and taken Ghandi to the imprisonment he had sought since March 12, when he began his march to Jalalpur on the sea, to refine salt in violation of the government monopoly.

Strikes Called

Hartals were called in Bombay as well, where thousands obeyed; in Ahmedabad, where Ghandi began his march to the salt beds at the sea; in Jalalpur, where he broke the salt laws, at Navsari, near Surat, where he was arrested, and elsewhere. As word of the arrest of the leader reached towns, volunteers following Ghandi's civil disobedience cause, roused the people to action.

Mrs. Ghandi's comment merely was that now Ghandi was gone, those remaining must carry on his work. She was scheduled to address meetings at Jalalpur and at Navsari. She led the procession at Jalalpur during the demonstration which elsewhere followed news of the arrest.

It was what Ghandi wanted. His arrest, he felt, would make him a martyr and cause his independence campaign to incite thousands, where he, free, could reach but hundreds.

Ghandi Held

Ghandi was arrested in dramatic circumstances. He was asleep in the Ashram at Karadi, a small village near Surat. It was long past midnight when the elderly leader was wakened by the flash from an electric torch shining in his face. It was the hand of a police superintendent, who, accompanied by the district magistrate and 20 armed police, had entered the Ashram, or seminary.

Ghandi asked if they wanted him.

"Yes," the magistrate replied. "We have orders to place you under arrest."

At Prison

The little party then proceeded quickly and quietly to a spot near Navzari, where the train made a special stop, in accordance with the plan. A special carriage carried him to Borivli station, near Bombay.

They reached Yeroda prison in the afternoon. Ghandi apparently was in excellent health and good spirits. He was said to have expressed gratitude to the government for the arrangements made for his journey. None saw Ghandi arrested, except a few newspapermen, and passengers on the train who peered out the windows but made no move to interfere.

Ghandi was arrested under ordinance 25 of the Act of 1827, giving the government authority to place under personal restraint, individuals against whom there may not be sufficient grounds to institute judicial proceedings. Ghandi will be held indefinitely without trial, the authorities said.

Defense Opens Attack In Bribe Trials At Oakland

OAKLAND, May 5.—UP— The defense opened its case today in the trial of three Oakland former deputy sheriffs and one asserted bootlegger on charges of bribery and conspiracy to bribe.

Just prior to the start of the defense, a motion to obtain a directed verdict of not guilty, was denied by Superior Judge Edward W. Engs.

Defendants in the trial are, A. R. Shurtleff, J. L. Davis, and J. J. Collier, the former deputies, and Jack Gardella, alleged bootlegger.

The first witness heard was Louis King, San Jose attorney, who denied that he had participated in liquor operations said to be under the protection of the sheriff's office. Eugene Q. Watson, prosecution witness had given testimony previously which implicated King.

Character witnesses then appeared for the defense.

In a second trial—that of William H. Parker, former street commissioner, Ray Lamberson, his secretary, and John Garbutt, paving man, for conspiracy in relation to the asserted paving graft, Lamberson testified that he had never accepted or handled bribes.

LAVINE RESTS BRIBERY CASE

LOS ANGELES, May 5.—(UP)—Introduction of evidence in the extortion trial of Morris Lavine, former newspaper reporter, and Miss Leontine Johnson, one-time secretary of the president of the Julian Petroleum corporation, ended suddenly today when the defense rested without placing any witness on the stand.

The action was taken after the state closed its case and Superior Judge B. Rey Schauer refused motions to dismiss the counts and instruct the jury to bring in a not guilty verdict.

Attorneys for Lavine and Miss Johnson told newspapermen that the state's evidence was so weak that they did not feel it necessary to present any defense.

Final arguments will be heard this morning.

The complaint against Lavine and Miss Johnson charges that they attempted to extort money from prominent local men on the threat to name the men in a series of articles on the Julian Petroleum scandal. Lavine was arrested as he left the offices of Charles Crawford, politician, and purportedly one of the victims, with $75,000 in marked money.

Change furnace drudgery into automatic, care-free heating

Use your present furnace

With this tiny lever you start and stop the furnace and regulate the temperature

HERE is automatic, care-free heating which actually costs less than heating which requires constant watching at the furnace door!

You can thank Natural Gas for that.

And Natural Gas can be used in your present furnace to supply this automatic, care-free heating. The change-over is easy and very inexpensive. We merely install the new "Conversion Burner" in the firebox.

Then you can fire your furnace from your easy chair—you simply move a tiny lever on the Thermostat which we mount on the wall of your living-room. The Thermostat controls the furnace far better than a janitor could if he watched beside the furnace day and night. This Thermostat automatically keeps your home at a steady, even temperature. You stop the furnace by moving this same tiny lever.

Healthful and Safe

When you install the "Conversion Burner," you substitute clean Natural Gas for your present fuel. The Natural Gas burns inside the steel firebox. All products of combustion go outdoors through a chimney just as the smoke does from your present fire. The pure, warm air which heats your home does not come in contact with the burning gas. It passes around the hot outsides of the steel firebox.

Ask any one who has a "Conversion Burner" — that's our best endorsement. Already there are over 2000 in use.

It is Clean

With the "Conversion Burner," your curtains, your wall-paper, and your furniture retain their fresh cleanliness. Dirt and soot are unknown.

Many Satisfied Users

Over two thousand "Conversion Burners" are in use at the present time. A careful check of these burners was made and they were found to be operating entirely satisfactorily. The people who are using them are more than pleased with the clean, care-free heating. Especially are they pleased with the low operating cost.

We Inspect Your Heating Plant

Before the Pacific Gas and Electric Company installs a "Conversion Burner" in your furnace or boiler, we test and make a very careful inspection of your heating plant.

This is Ideal Heating

The "Conversion Burner" makes living easier. Mother won't have to fire the furnace when father is away. Guests will always be warm and comfortable. No one need interrupt a party to fire the furnace. Your home is more healthful—there is no over-heating, no under-heating.

For a demonstration of the "Conversion Burner," call at our office, or telephone and a representative will give you full details.

Don't Be a Door-Mat!

ONCE upon a time there was a modern young man named Smith,
Who fell in love with a modern girl named Marjorie,
And who agreed with her that, when they married, theirs should be an entirely modern menage.
They were rapturously in love, but, with what they thought was modern cynicism,
They tried to kid themselves out of it—
They even went so far, thanks to Marjorie, as to refuse to call their honeymoon
By its time-honored but—she insisted—"mushy" terminology.
Smith was handsome, yet not dumb, and with an excellent job;
As for Marjorie, she wasn't even a college graduate,
And, before her marriage, and for two years afterward, she held down the comparatively simple and unpromising post
Of secretary to a public school principal.
After the wedding, Smith's father not only gave the young couple a good-sized equity in a house they liked,
But a lot of furniture and a car—
Marjorie accepted the wedding present graft as placidly as the most old-fashioned of brides.
The young son that eventually appeared was welcomed by her
And she promptly fell in love with him.
Although she moaned frequently about the destruction of her "career"
As private secretary to a public school principal!
(Apparently it never occurred to her that, as soon as her youngster was big enough to go to school,
She could brush up on her stenography and typing
And probably find at least part-time employment).
Meanwhile, her husband had been promoted to a really important position,
He was earning an excellent salary and working exceedingly hard,
He had built a new house in a prosperous neighborhood—
He had bought his wife a new car, while he drove the old one—
Yet she couldn't even exert herself to the point of furnishing the new home herself—
She had to turn it over to an expensive interior decorator.
Now, it's all very well to talk about modern women and old-fashioned women,
But when either marries, there's only one self-respecting role—
The role of worker, either in the home or outside it.
If a woman's husband is working hard, and she has a house and a small child on her hands
And nothing else—then, the least she can do
Is to manage both, without fuss and repining,
And without spending a lot more money than her husband can afford.
Yet that was far from the modern Marjorie's idea—
She not only hired a woman to take entire charge of her son for three afternoons and evenings a week,
But she insisted that her husband devote all of every Sunday to the boy—
On that day she would not lift a finger to dress, feed, amuse or discipline him,
And every morning in the week, Smith had to dress the boy and get breakfast.
What was worse, and more unfair, if you ask us,
Is that she consciously and deliberately spent more money, than her husband made
Largely for dressing and amusing herself—
She pulled that old line of the parasite wife—
That the way for a wife to make her husband get ahead
Is to keep his nose to the grindstone, in order to pay her bills.
Well, and then, according to Smith's story—
(You'll find it set down in the current "Plain Talk,"
In a piece called "Sour Grapes from an Ex-Husband")—
Marjorie and a friend of hers, not content with amusing themselves
At a tea-room haunted by gigolos,
Actually dipped into their husbands' funds to pay for the dramatic tuition
Of one of these young gentlemen,
And became furious when the husbands were so "un-modern" as to protest.
Marjorie continued to play around—
To claim not only the liberty but the license of the so-called "modern woman"—
To be a cheat and rotten sport, even though technically virtuous in her marriage relationship.
Finally, the climax came—
She went to a party, wearing clothes which had got her husband into debt,
She sneered, when he wanted to go home at a reasonable hour,
She let him go along, and returned, hours later, with another man—
Just as her husband was rising, as usual, to dress and feed the young son.
She quarreled furiously, for the next month, because at last he had opened a separate bank account,
Finally, she took her son and departed.
Charging that her husband had "punched her in the nose"—because the door of an automobile
Had swung by accident from his hand and hit her!
Then, she sued him for divorce, alleging
That he had made a scene at a party and deserted her, to go home,
That he had cut down her allowance,
That he had burdened her with domestic cares,
That he had ridiculed her and objected to her innocent friendships.
The result was that she won a practically undefended suit,
Plus the home and its furnishings and $180 a month in alimony.
Now, far be it from us to defend this most indefensible young woman,
But we do think that her husband was simply asking for it!
After all, he made most of the money
And could have controlled its uses, had he put his foot down early enough.
After all, he could have emphasized, even before marriage,
That the modern woman's enjoyment of new rights
Does NOT include the right to dodge all the old responsibilities.
He could have co-operated with her in the care of their small son
Without allowing her to make him the goat.
He could have made it plain, from the beginning,
That his willingness to treat his wife as comrade and equal
Did not amount to a willingness to let her treat him as a jellyfish and a worm—
Yes, we know our metaphor and zoology are mixed,
But, as a husband, Smith—and many another—certainly resembles both species!
There is something else to which he bears a likeness,
And it suggests the moral of this fable—for the men only—
Don't be a door-mat—
Unless you want your wife to tread on you!

"Seventh Inning: Everybody Stretches!"

WHEN your nerves are taut—stretch.
When your brain stalls—stretch.
When you feel like running but have neither the place nor the time nor the room—stretch.

And when you are bored—stretch.

For stretching is a highly beneficial exercise, a relaxing and revivifying, and in fact a simply delicious exercise!

Bodies that stretch regularly are not wont to grow creaky and old. No, they stay young and elastic—even as does the body of that champion stretcher, the cat.

One of the loveliest forms of exercise for the lazy is a thoroughgoing stretch before rising in the morning. A stretch from head to toes. From neck to hips, from hips to knees and then to the toetips, and finally from shoulders to fingertips. Do it twice, three times; do it five or six times on waking. It makes rising infinitely easier.

And stretch again when you settle down to your night's rest. It makes not merely sleep but deep refreshing sleep come easier. Because, as we pointed out before, it is relaxing.

Two or three times during the day try this: rise on tiptoe and raise the arms as high as you can and walk about. Feel yourself plucking at stars, gathering at clouds, growing.

Do you know what this does in addition to making you feel renewed? It actually adds to your height. It adds as much as you are capable of eking out of your present height.

Blessed is the housewife with her days to herself. She can go about her chores stretching as much and as often as she chooses to. But efficiency, office decorum, cubbyholes of offices and all that, make it pretty hard for the working girl to get in a good stretch. Yet she needs it more than the housewife. Much more.

We suggest that the desk worker scheme to get in a minute or two of this ideal form of exercise. The will will find the way.

The stretching stunt can be thoroughgoing without being either elaborate or conspicuous. It can be done sitting right at one's desk, during those occasional tranquil periods when the boss steps out.

Softening Straight Lines

How to Reconstruct the Skirt to Conform to the New Mode

By Clarissa Moore

FAIRLY clogged with fads and fancies as the new fashions are, it is just plain difficult not to rush out and buy the first thing that meets the eye, but most of us cannot afford that luxury. We have to bow to the little god of thrift, or is it a goddess, and make our dollar go as far as possible.

This being the case, I am wondering if most of you haven't a black frock among your left-overs that you would like to use this spring if only while you are making up your minds just what or what not to buy.

INTRODUCING GODETS

Black is smart as never before, in spite of the fact that there are ravishing new color schemes, and we have already decided among ourselves that the safest way to contrive springtime chic on a limited budget this year is via the salvaging process, so by all means let us salvage the black frock.

There are several ways of transforming it. Shall we say its material is worsted, its design a one-piece straight-line effect and that it is in good condition, or perhaps, that it will be after a visit to the cleaners.

Now then, you can, of course, make it into a two-piece suit after the manner of the ones described in preceding articles, but if you prefer to keep it as a dress for cool days to wear with your fur-piece, how about making it in princess effect? This can be done with comparatively little trouble so that not even you yourself would recognize it for your little old last year's black frock.

First, to make it hug the figure a little closer at the waistline, which is one of the chief characteristics of a princess model, and then to eliminate the straight line of the skirt and substitute a flare, which is another! You can acquire the waistline curve through a series of nip-tucks, which means tiny perpendicular tucks or plaits stitched on the machine. These should be basted first—all of them—and the dress tried on, unless you can get some one to pin each little tuck for you.

They, the tucks, can be done all the way around, in which case you will probably have to make them just the tiniest possible, or they can be arranged in groups. In addition, to give the right curve at the waistline, it may be necessary to take in the side seams a trifle. Baste these, too, before stitching and before ripping the original stitches. You may be satisfied simply with the treatment of the seams, which, of course, means much less work.

BOWS FOR DECORATION

In that case you might add a series of soft little "made" bows down one side like those on a dress Blanche Ring wears in that racy musical revue, "Strike Up the Band." Bows aren't always graceful, but these are, distinctly.

Now for acquiring that demanded flare for the skirt part. This may be done through godets, which are extremely difficult, or through pleated insets, which are easier. As there is no matching material with which to work, you might use crepe. Unless you prefer to keep the dress all black, the godets or the pleated section, may be of gray, tan or blue, which are all good with the black.

The godets are triangular sections. They should measure about six inches across the bottom and be, say, sixteen inches long, and you should have four of them. Now slash the dress material straight up the center-back and front and open the side seams, in each instance to a depth of fifteen inches. Then, lay one long edge of one of your triangular sections neatly to one of your slashed edges, right sides facing each other, turn down on wrong side, and stitch on the machine.

Do this all round, that is with each godet, then press, and this painstakingly, for when the skirt is spread out the inserted sections must lie perfectly smooth and flat. Therein lies their success. After pressing the seam edges you may, if you choose, fold the dress edge inward over the edge of the godet and also folding the front edges of the godet together, turn on the wrong side and press a fold down through the centre.

If you prefer a pleated section to introduce fulness take a straight section of material and turn a hem the length of your dress hem, then lay your folds lengthwise, measuring, folding and basting each one separately. When finished press flat under a damp cloth, holding the pleats all together at the top. I am presuming you have slashed the skirt up the centre, but if you like it better it may be the left side, leaving the skirt part as is, otherwise stitch the edges of the slash one to each side of your pleated section and press.

To return for a moment to the top part of this black frock, I must tell you of another way to take in the waistline in case you prefer it to the tiny pleats. Run half a dozen shirrlines horizontally at each side, no more than a quarter-inch apart, leaving the thread ends loose, put the dress on and draw up the shirrs till you have the right princess effect. Then, if you have any of the material, cut two pieces, each six inches long by four wide, turn a hem all around, stitch nicely and press. Apply these to cover the shirr-lines, taking the greatest care in putting them on, first that they are exactly opposite each other, secondly, that your stitches are so small and close together that the patchpiece appears to have been stitched to the dress with the hem, which would be the better but much more difficult way.

A MINUTE OR TWO WITH BOOKS

By RUTH SNYDER

Social Life in Paris

"WHO is Anne Green?" Her publishers, E. P. Dutton & Co., in an intriguing manner flash her picture on the cover jacket of a book entitled "The Selbys" and boldly proclaim that this is the question on every one's lips. The picture shows a most attractive young lady with mischievous eyes and a set of teeth that Amos an' Andy sponsors might use to advantage when television becomes a fashion.

Now, then, Anne Green is the sister of Julian Green. And she can write. Perhaps her style will not be popular generally, but there is a certain breeziness about her story of Barbara Winship and "The Selbys" that heralds a writer of great possibilities.

Who are "The Selbys"? "The Selbys" are Southerners who have lived in Paris for years. They hated the American colony in Paris, and knew the social life as they believed it should be lived—not the bohemianism of Montmartre.

It was to these Selbys that Barbara Winship was sent. Barbara was their niece who had been brought up in Savannh "until the Episcopal High School and Miss Pitzer's Seminary had polished her to a solid if provincial lustre. Then it was decided to send her over to Aunt Virginia Selby, for whom, as any Georgian will tell you, the French had no secrets."

Barbara at first did not like Paris. But soon she became acquainted with Georges Lemoine. Georges decided that she should be his friend.

"You see," quoth this youth, "I am capable of deep friendship but absolutely proof against love. If you leave that disagreeable factor out you get gayety (who ever heard of a gay love affair?) and a lot of jolly excursions."

Georges induced Barbara to go on a jolly excursion with him, sans matrimonial intentions, which only ended to Barbara's future happiness because Georges's car broke down enough to give Barbara an exhibition of her lover's dictatorial ways.

So ended her first romance. Then came Michael, for whom she had the grand passion and in whose arms the reader finally leaves her safe and happy, although after a stormy courtship.

There is not much "story" to "The Selbys." Its appeal lies in the style of the writer. Anne Green likes to poke fun at people. She likes her people to be a little bit crazy at times. Berry, American, is one of her lunatics. Berry once, in an effort to hear more about the disturbance in the Michael-Barbara romance, thought up some suitable opening sentences calculated to make Barbara confess the cause of the misunderstanding. One was:

"Would you rather have a boy or a girl? I think girl babies are just too cunning."

Readers who would like to read a delightful, cheerful romance of Paris social life will find "The Selbys" amusing, interesting and realistic.

The Story of Hetty Green

THE autobiography of Hetty Green might be used as a sermon with its text taken from the subtitle "A Woman Who Loved Money." Search as one may through the book one can find no indication where money brought happiness to either Hetty Robinson, the New Bedford heiress, or Hetty Green, the woman who became known as the greatest woman financier in the world.

Boyden Sparkes and Samuel Taylor Moore tell this story of Hetty Green. Their story is a straightforward, unembellished one of miserliness and greed.

One time in a conversation with Hetty Green, Mrs. Torry expressed concern over Hetty Green carrying so much money in her handbag. Hetty Green denied that she carried anything of great value in the handbag and invited her friend to see for herself the method she employed.

"Look!" she commanded, and grasping her overskirt at her knees pulled it high, revealing to the gaze of Mrs. Torry a petticoat of strong cotton fabric to which were stitched a number of deep pockets each wide enough to engulf the contents of a safe deposit box. Around Mrs. Green's waist was a chain from which dangled a bunch of keys. At this time Mrs. Green had safe deposit boxes in many cities."

Hetty Green is reported as having made the following statement to Agnes Elmendorf, who had asked her aunt why she did not dress well all the time:

"I'm going to tell you something. I am only comfortable in rags and tatters because I was marked before my birth. While my mother was carrying me she was frightened half to death by a ragged, tattered tramp. I have to wear old clothes. I suffer, really, when I'm dressed up."

A Good Mystery Story

"MARK 'CANCELLED'" is an enjoyable mystery story based on the death of Albert Reade, an eccentric multi-millionaire who was found murdered early one morning by a young man who had arrived from the West to pay Mr. Reade in cash a sum of money. This young man finds a charming young girl alone in the house, in Washington, D. C. All circumstances lead the prosecutors to conclude that she was the murderer. But love and developing circumstances help to prove to the reader that Claire was not the guilty party.

"Mark 'Cancelled'," by Natalie Summer Lincoln, is published by D. Appleton & Co.

Think It Over

By Alfalfa Smith

WHEN you get a letter from the gas, electric light or telephone company, to say nothing of the water company, I suggest that you open it and read it through.

The reason I suggest this is that a young lady I know received a communication from one of these companies and she paid no attention to it. However, when the service was turned off and she had to make a new contract she paid a lot of attention to it.

When I called her attention to the fact that she did not open the first communication and it was all her own fault she got mad.

It does not pay to ignore the mail from a large corporation.

BUSINESS IS ON THE UP-GRADE

BUSINESS has turned the corner and it isn't headed down an alley, either. Better times are coming soon. It is true that industry has been anaemic. Now it's static. But the music will shortly start coming in. Interviews with big business men all over the country show the tide has turned and is going out. No longer will business be all wet.

Listen to these hopeful prophecies:

ELBOW BEND, Wyo.—"We are preparing for the boom already," said Luigi Scupatelli, the famous cigar coupon designer, to-day. "Commencing June 1 we will issue coupons in different colors and in the following denominations: 6⅞th, 44-100ths, 5-5-3 and 3.1416. Doesn't that sound like piping times?"

WISHBONE, Ariz.—Business has turned the corner and is loping up a hill, in the opinion of Philip T. Brugh of here. Mr. Brugh is a seismograph watchman.

"In my thirty-two years' experience watching seismographs," said Mr. Brugh, "I have never seen rosier prospects. When I first started watching a seismograph needle, that industry was in its infancy. To-day there is a seismograph to every 2,083,966.41 persons and hardly enough watchmen to go around."

SELDOM, Ky.—"I think 1930 will be a banner year," stated Enoch Snitz jr., here to-day. Mr. Snitz is one of the leading valentine, birthday and Christmas card authors. "Business has leaped and I am now working on three shifts—morning, noon and night. That gives me my afternoons off.

"By refusing to wish a Merry Christmas and a Harry New Year on one and the same card, the Verse and Epigram Writers' Union has practically doubled their output. Orders are swamping us already for new comic valentines, showing that the era of good feeling has set in. I should also guess that women will have more birthdays this year than usual and altogether the outlook is very good."

PEPSIN, Fla.—"Put me down as a booster for 1930," said Eleazer Lumley, at his office here to-day. Lumley is a crack salesman for sticky flypaper.

"The Government has just estimated the crop of domestic house flies for 1930 will exceed last year's supply by 3,250,000,000,000,000. And this is exclusive of fleas, vermin, insects, hornets, wasps, millers and bumblebees. Think what that means for business! International Mosquito Netting gained 6 points on the news and Eureka Fly Swatter declared an extra dividend. Next week 5,000 men will be put to work punching square holes for screen doors. Everything on the horizon looks fine and dandy."

PICCOLO, W. Va.—Isaac Triff, a veteran business man of here, picks 1930 to be a super-normal year. "I can tell when a live year is coming," said Mr. Triff. "I use my collarbones for divining rods and they are sticking out already for 1930.

"Forty-three years as a cocoanut shell soloist have taught me to be shrewd. I started rapping cocoanue shells off-stage in the season of '76. In those days it only sounded like one horse galloping up. But in those days we only played one-horse towns.

"Gradually I improved my art till I could rattle shells to sound like a cavalry troop. Six years ago, when I quit, I was playing the role of the entire Royal Northwest Mounted police force. All this work has given my an insight into big business. I feel I know whereof I speak when I say things will soon be picking up."

Black Combines With Pink

Oh, Go to Bed

"Shouldn't we walk on the left side of the road, so as to be facing the cars?"

"Certainly."

"Oh, go to bed."

Summer Foundations

THE average woman will frown when she thinks of a foundation garment for summer wear. The fact remains that some disciplinary measure is necessary to the well dressed appearance, whatever the temperature.

Batiste this year in a fine durable quality makes practical and cool foundations. Light weight satin is made to look dainty and summery with lace decorations. Lace over net, as also volle, is suggested to mould the slight figure.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

GOLDEN DAWN

by MARC O'FARRELL

Copyright 1930, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

This story is based on Warner Bros. Vitaphone production of the play by Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein II.

SYNOPSIS

Only the arrival of Shep Keyes, crack whip man of the East African settlement, has prevented the rites that would have made Dawn the mystic bride of the god Malunghu. As such she would be henceforth supplicated in time of war and famine. Dawn is a young girl who only knows that her father was English. She believes, as does everybody else, that she is the product of miscegenation. The prospect of being dedicated to the monster wooden idol, and removed from all contact with people, horrifies her. Shep Keyes intimidates the priest and Dawn's self-styled mother, Mooda. He has his own designs on Dawn. Young Tom Allen, her sweetheart, is brought in a prisoner of war. The Germans have seized the British protectorate.

INSTALLMENT FIVE

Meantime, Tom, who was not in the slightest interested in what Shep and Mooda had to say to each other, had no trouble overhearing them. It was when he heard Dawn's name mentioned that he really began to eavesdrop.

"What you know about Dawn is the reason you can't have her," Mooda told Shep.

"What I knows about Dawn is de reason why I want her."

"Hush, Shep!" admonished Mooda. "Please."

Shep lowered his voice, but Tom Allen already had overheard enough to trouble him. He was aware that Shep had long coveted Dawn and had annoyed her with his clumsy attentions; but this consultation with Mooda convinced him that the jungle whip man was contemplating early action toward the fulfillment of his desire. A prisoner of war, he felt helpless to do anything about it, but he resolved nevertheless to watch Shep closely.

Mooda pleaded with the bully

In whispers Mooda continued her efforts to persuade Shep not to interfere with the marriage of Dawn to Malunghu. "Everybody think Dawn is native girl," she pleaded. "Suppose you say she white. Nobody believe you."

Ego led Shep to lift his voice within range of Tom's ear. "Nobody believe me, huh? One o' dese English prisoner men already been askin' about her."

"Who" asked Mooda in quick concern.

"Tom Allen. Ain't he owned a rubber plantation down here long enough? Don't he know white from black?"

"Don't tell him nothin' Shep," begged Mooda.

"I ain't tellin' nobody nothin'—yet."

He indicated that he had nothing further to say, and, Mooda, with a quick glance at Tom, hurried into the canteen. Shep also noticed Tom again and was annoyed at his presence. He rose and strutted through the crowd, threatening and bullying.

"Come on," he barked to the Askari guards, "get these prisoners out o' here. Dey gets in my way."

Tom, in view of what he had heard, decided not to be hurried off with the rest of the prisoners. He realized that Shep might attempt to enforce his order with the whip but since circumstances were likely to lead to an encounter with the black man eventually, it might as well take place as quickly as possible. He accordingly refused to move.

Without appearing to be aware of Tom's existence, Shep was inspecting him closely. He sensed rebellion in the action of the young Englishman and debated several measures of discipline. Finally he walked over and stood before Tom, fixing him with a baleful eye. Tom returned an impersonal stare, as if waiting for Shep to speak. But the whip man, contenting himself with a sneer, turned and busied himself with less intractable prisoners.

Alone, Tom allowed himself thoughts which he had often dismissed with a stab of guilt. He began to examine himself with a view to finding out the precise depth of his affection for Dawn. Like other white men of the settlement he at first found Dawn refreshing. As he grew to know her his affection became personalized for Dawn the girl, not just for the native creature of the canteen. In moments of loneliness, he fancied himself somewhat in love with her, but quickly rid himself of the thought. There was that in an Englishman's social code which forbade him to fall in love with a native girl.

But of one truth he was unable to rid himself. He knew that he was happiest when he was with her. To be sure, he masked his true feelings with a sort of big-brother kindliness, meantime assuring himself that loneliness for his own people had left him susceptible to the girl's undeniable charm.

Now, cheered by the wisp of evidence he had stolen from the conversation between Mooda and Shep, he no longer wished to argue with himself the propriety of falling in love. He loved Dawn. He could tell himself that, and he could believe it. Still it was a love frustrated. Everything conspired to leave him in a far worse position than ever.

To begin with, he was a prisoner of war, his every move restricted. It would be thus impossible for him to undertake the task which would prove to the world the truth of Dawn's Caucasian birth. He would take Dawn as she was, and let the world think what it liked, but he sadly recognized that the conventions of civilization could not be overcome that way. But he put all discouraging truths aside, mindful that immediate action was vital.

As he studied his task he saw Dawn threatened by twin evils. She was already pledged to the wooden bridegroom that the natives worshipped. To save her from sacrificing herself to savage superstition was in itself a task sufficient to confound him utterly. In addition he must save her from Shep, from whom she would suffer tortures far greater than she would be made to endure as a goddess of the barbarians.

He gave vent to an embittered laugh. It was ironical. He had, in blind adherence to social custom, refused to believe himself in love. And now, helpless, he was faced with the difficulty of securing the freedom of both himself and Dawn, an insoluble problem to start with. A fine time to fall in love!

Sudden excitement among the prisoners roused Tom from his perplexities. Joining them, as they lined up before Captain Eric, he learned that ten of them were to be transported to Tabora, thence to a seaport and home. He experienced a sudden fear. Captain Eric, he knew, was fond of him, and doubtless would include him among the ten. He had frequently expressed to Eric the wish to return to fight for England. But now he had no wish to leave Africa. There was too much to do. He could not depart and leave Dawn exposed to the lust of Shep and the agonies of voodooism.

"Achtung!" At Captain Eric's command, the lines of prisoners came to attention. With sinking heart, Tom steadied himself to hear the message that was to return the favored ten to England.

Captain Eric smiled at the eager prisoners, lined up to hear his momentous announcement.

"I want you to listen to a general order from German headquarters at Tabora," he began. There was an excited murmuring among the prisoners, but they immediately came to attention when the German officer paused.

"You are," he resumed, reading from the despatch, "instructed to release ten of your British prisoners and send them at once to Tabora to be exchanged and sent home."

There was another buzz of conversation, which Captain Eric checked with a sharp "Achtung!" He explained, with maddening deliberateness of speech!

"This means that ten of your number will be sent—home!"

All discipline vanished. Cries of "who are they?" and "Am I going?" and similar questions, heartbreaking in their eagerness, assailed the commander's ears. He raised a hand for order, but it brought only a concerted cheering. When, finally it was again possible to be heard, Anzac pressed forward.

"Wot you say, Captain," he said, "do I go back to Melbourne?"

"An' me, Captain," interrupted Pigeon, "I've always been on the good behavior list."

Another advanced an impassioned plea for his dependent family of ten, longing for him in Kent. Another suddenly recalled that his place was with his wife in York.

"I've got two wives, Captain," the Cockney broke in, "an' a baby wot's cryin' for its Pigeon."

Delivered of this speech, Pigeon found himself with his face in the dirt, thrust thither by an inrushing Englishman known as Duke. Duke, it seemed, had found by quick computation that release would permit him to reach England in time to join in the grouse-shooting in Sussex.

AUDIT MADE OF POLICE JUDGE BOOKS

Offer of H. A. Hansen to deed the city property for a street opening for the continuation of Liberty street, between Schmidt and Moser Lanes, providing the city will build several buildings and make certain improvements, was referred to street commissioner Peter Larsen at the meeting of the city council of El Cerrito Monday night.

A permit was granted to hold a vaudeville marathon starting on May 24th, to be under the auspices of the Louis Hagan Post of the American Legion.

Adoption of a resolution giving the board of supervisors permission to tax the city of El Cerrito for the construction of new outfall sewers near Point Isabel was passed by the council.

Report of Councilman Peter Larsen that seven 250-candle power street lights, five fire hydrants, 500 feet of 4-inch water main and 4873 feet of 6-inch water main had been installed in the city during his term as water and light commissioner, was placed on file.

Acceptance of the report of the auditing of the books of former police judge J. F. Plank, which showed that $18,143.05 had been collected during the past year, was accepted by the following vote: Ayes, Councilmen Beck, Nissen, Lee, O'Brien; Noes, Larsen.

Councilman Larsen stated that he thought the report should be laid over for one week in order to check the report, as there might be some errors.

Police Judge A. G. Thompson informed the council that $125 in bail turned over to him as cash, was personal checks, made out to J. F. Plank, and he would not accept them as cash until they were endorsed and honored by the bank.

Councilman Phil A. Lee offered to see that Plank endorsed the checks.

Application of Moore's Pharmacy, San Pablo and Potrero avenues, for a soft drink permit, was granted by the council.

Mayor J. R. Beck appointed Councilman Phil A. Lee to investigate the stagnant water pools in the city and present his recommendation next Monday for city health betterment.

Big Bad Bill Has Sentence Fixed

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.—(UP)—The state prison board has set the prison sentence of "Big Bad Bill" O'Connor, gunman and burglar, at 25 years in San Quentin, it became known today.

O'Connor, convicted for a jewelry store holdup here in 1924, was also responsible for robberies in Eureka, Los Angeles and other coast cities.

Flier To Attempt Continental Record

LOS ANGELES, May 5.—(UP)—With New York as the goal, Capt. Roscoe Turner, prominent aviator, said today that he planned to attempt to break the flight record across the continent.

The flier said he hopes to take off from Los Angeles on the speed hop within the next few days, depending upon weather conditions. He will pilot a Lockheed monoplane.

BANKS' SUPPORT AVERTS STOCK CRASH

NEW YORK, May 5.—UP—Powerful banking support of the calibre that halted the autumn crash came today into the stock market and stemmed another threatening break.

As a result of throwing billions into the breach, the bankers turned the market upward sharply and many of the leaders closed with substantial gains.

Today's was the fourth largest market in history, with sales totaling 8,279,260 shares. Curb sales set a record for the year at 2,545,400 and the Chicago exchange came the closest to a million shares for any time in 1930 at 960,800 shares.

Market Irregular

The market opened irregular with buying coming in on all recessions. Then prices turned upward until mid-afternoon when a crash that resembled the autumn break took place. In the last few minutes bids were made at prices above the list and the tide turned.

It was learned that the situation had become so acute that bankers met in conference just as they did when values were crumpling last fall.

It was also learned that the powers in financial circles did some conferring with the professional bears and these gentlemen were told to "lay off."

Recovered

Easement of bearish pressure, together with buying by the banking interests, brought a recovery of vast proportions. The turn came so late in the day, however, that it did not carry as it might have. Neither was it sufficient in many cases to prevent impairment of weak margined accounts. Clerks were at work late in the night on books and called any accounts that were not strongly margined. Selling out of these accounts tomorrow is expected to bring irregularity, after which, it is believed, the rally will be resumed.

General belief in the street was that the selling wave had spent itself. Observers look for a fairly spirited rally during which the bears will cover. Then a dull market is looked for, carrying over through most of the summer. In the autumn a really big bull movement is forseen in line with expected pickup in business.

Records Fall

It is believed that the real cause of the recent break was an overextended long position by professionals, although the fact that bankers wished to see a weak stock market so that more attention might be paid to bonds to help float their reparation loans temporarily took away their support.

Several records were broken today. Sales exceeded any day this year and were the largest since October 30 when the total touched 10,727,320 shares. Two other days were larger—October 28 with 9,212,800 shares and October 29 with 9,212,800 shares and October 29 with 16,410,030 shares.

Sales in the first half hour totaled 1,423,700, the heaviest first half hour since October 29 when the total was above the three million mark.

Assessment Problems To Be Discussed

The question of special assessments is one of the problems of vital interest to all taxpayers of Contra Costa county, according to J. B. McFarland, secretary of the Contra Costa county division of the California Taxpayers' association.

McFarland calls attention to the fact tha tthis matter will come before the 1931 session of the California legislature for consideration, discussion and action.

In a statement made public today, McFarland said:

"The 1929 legislature created a Joint Legislative Committee of senate and assembly to make a study of the public improvement laws of California. This committee has already completed its field work and is now engaged in the actual formulation of a report, together with recommendations for remedial changes in the special assessment laws of this state.

"Under the operation of the present laws, excessive burdens have been placed upon property owners, unnecessary improvements have been made, and in many cases, through the pyramiding of assessments, property has been confiscated.

"The application of these laws has not been conducive to the promotion of home ownership or the development of industry.

"Heretofore the improvement laws of California have given consideration to the public official, to the contractor, to the bond holder, but they have seldom recognized the rights and responsibilities of the individual property owner, who, in the final analysis, bears the burden and pays the bills for all special assessments. Special assessment are rapidly becoming a tool, by, for and of the exploiter. The power to remedy thi evil must be returned to the property owner through the amendment of these laws.

"The taxpayers of Californnia should, in unison, demand that the 1931 legislature remedy the evils and defects in the special assessment laws. They should insist upon the curbing of those special interests, who have, in the past, been able to frame this legislation in the direction of their own selfish ends."

heard his Lincoln Day address, would be assured of another wonderful treat Memorial Day as "Calfee's Lincoln Day address was a masterpiece in oration, and we local veterans are assured that he will make as wonderful a speech May 30."

At the cemetery, members of the American War Mothers will decorate the graves with floral wreaths.

A salute will be fired over the graves by a firing squad of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and a bugling corps furnished by the Spanish American War Veterans will play taps.

To Serve Banquet

Following the services, the Veteran auxiliaries will serve a sumptuous banquet at the Richmond Memorial hall, which according to Nee, will be a masterpiece in culinary art.

On May 25, the water services will be held on the bay under the auspices of the U. V. R. auxiliary.

The Richmond-San Rafael Ferry company has donated a ferry boat for the occasion on which the ceremonies will be held.

To Honor Navy Dead

The services May 25 are in honor of the Navy dead, and an elaborate ceremony has been prepared, according to Miss Mary Jette, chairman of the services.

Dr. A. B. Hinkley of the Richmond post of the American Legion will give the address of the day, and Rev. H. I. Oberholtzer will deliver the invocation and benediction.

Members of the auxiliaries will strew flowers on the bay, and an elaborate float will be lowered into the water with impressive ceremonies.

Band To Play

The Richmond High school band will be present and will render musical selections.

The ceremonies will start at one o'clock and all members of veteran organizations and their friends are invited to attend.

Miss Jette last night issued an appeal for flowers, and asked that anyone having flowers they would contribute to the ceremonies, telephone her at Richmond 1266.

Banks Come To Rescue Of Raisin Growers

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.—(UP)—Four California banks agreed today to extend credit to the Sunmaid Corporation of California, after a conference between representatves of the banks and Carlyle Thorpe, president of the Sunmaid Corporation of Delaware, holding corporation for the California concern, and special representatives of the Federal Farm boad.

By the agreement reached today, the banks will extend credit not to exceed $400,000 for the domestic operations in handing the 1929 crop, and for overhead expenses.

The banks further agreed to discount bills on foreign shipments, the amount not to exceed $750,000.

The four banks which sponsored the agreement were: The Bank of Italy, Anglo London & Paris National Bank, Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Berkeley; and the Security First National, of Los Angeles.

In entering into the credit agreement, the banks first considered carefully the affairs of the two Sunmaid corporations, and decided that the overhead costs of both the California and Delaware concerns must be cut down.

This will mean, it was stated, that the Fresno offices of the Sunmaid Corporation must be removed from the present office buildings to Plant No. 4, and that several plant consolidations and reductions in personnel must be made.

It was understood that the cash advanced was to be employed solely or the manufacture, packing and merchandising of the 1929 crop, and that the first $200,000 advanced was to apply toward the paypment of past due bills.

Gov. Young Will Seek Re-election

things worth while, and have under way many important tasks yet uncompleted. I am asking for a second term in order that I may complete these tasks, just as a business manager who has labored hard and faithfully may justly expect that his stockholders should not displace him in favor of someone else without his experience or first-hand knowledge of the business.

"This principle is no new thing in government. We re-elect the mayors of our cities term after term, believing that the experience gained during a previous term is a valuable asset for future service to the city. Of our last three governors, two have been elected after previous service in the office. We commonly elect our presidents for a second term, and are looking forward to the re-election of our California President two years from now.

"I have never tried to conceal my stand on any public question. For example, every Californian knows my conviction that as long as the Eighteenth Amendment is the law of the land, it must be observed and enforced as such. I have no sympathy with a candidacy that compromises the issue or seeks to undermine or weaken the fundamental law. Yet many who disagree with me in such matters have helped to elect me, twice as lieutenant-governor and once as governor, simply because my position has been well known and I have not tried to evade the issue.

"The four years of our present administration have placed our state finances on an exceeedingly sound and healthful basis. Despite appropriations made for much-needed new institutions, such as a new state hospital, new prisons and the like, and despite assistance we are now giving the counties by sharing the expense of providing aid for the indigent aged and the needy blind, we have so rigidly held down our general state expenditures that we now have a cash surplus of more than $29,000,000, the highest in the history of the state, a net gain of $6,000,000 during these four years."

Bear Found In Small Iceberg

WRANGELL, Alaska, May 5.—UP—Fishermen were astonished today when they saw a large black bear, reared on his hind legs, teeth bared, frozen in a small iceberg adrift from the Leconte glacier, about 20 miles from here. They surmised the bear had fallen into a crevass while crossing the glacier, and had been imprisoned for years until the berg broke off and was carried down to tidewater.

SALE OF RUM EQUIPMENT OUTLAWED

held forfeiture of his stock, was bottomed on the contention that the Volstead Act's provision for forfeiture of materials used in "manufacture of liquor" could not include such things as he sold. These things are used, when bootleggers obtain them, for preparing the liquor which has already been "manufactured" for market.

This argument, said Holmes, "is obviously correct, if the word 'manufacture' is taken in the very strictest and exact sense."

First Decision.

"But the word may be used in a looser way to express the whole process by which an article is made ready for sale on the open market."

This decision was the first in a half-dozen new phases of prohibition enforcement, including the legality of buying liquor from a bootlegger, which Attorney General Mitchell has appealed to the supreme court in recent months.

Government victories in the list will make possible the most drastic enforcement campaign ever undertaken after Mitchell becomes head of enforcement this summer.

The court also granted Attorney General Mitchell a review of his attempt, defeated in lower courts, to recover double internal revenue penalties from illicit liquor sellers after they had been convicted of Volstead act violation. Charles E. Silva, Roseville, California, rancher, convicted and sentenced to one year in jail for violating the internal revenue laws by operating a still, was denied a review of his case.
